TO ALL LOCAL GOVERNMENTS, PLANNING BODIES AND PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Enclosed herewith is a copy of the appropriate section of the Statewide Inventory of Historic Properties as expanded under special contract by Stephen Dow Beckham in 1976.

We hope and trust that the Inventory will assist you in the development of your comprehensive plans and other matters. It should be remembered that the Inventory is not complete in this form. It will be revised and enlarged continually. Moreover, archeological sites are not included for purposes of site protection. In many cases, properties which have been entered into the National Register of Historic Places are not included. We are including as an addendum a listing of properties in your area which were included in the Inventory prior to 1976.

If questions regarding the Inventory arise, please contact us at 378-5001.

Sincerely,

Paul B. Hartwig
Historic Preservation Coordinator

NATIONAL REGISTER OF HISTORIC PLACES:

The National Register of Historic Places is the official list of the nation's cultural resources worthy of preservation. It is maintained by the National Park Service under authority of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966. The list contains districts, sites, archeological sites, buildings, structures and objects of national, state or local significance. National Historic Landmarks are automatically included. A cumulative listing of all National Register properties is published annually in the February issue of the Federal Register, the regular Congressional publication. Under certain circumstances, National Register properties are eligible for federal preservation assistance.

DEFINITIONS OF PRESERVATION TERMS AS USED BY THE NATIONAL PARK SERVICE:

Preservation is the process of sustaining the form and extent of a structure essentially as it now exists. Preservation aims at halting further deterioration and providing structural stability but does not contemplate significant rebuilding.

Restoration is the process of accurately recovering the form and details of a property as it appeared at a particular period of time by means of removal of later work and the replacement of missing original work.

Reconstruction is the process of reproducing by new construction the exact form and detail of a vanished structure, or part of it, as it appeared at a specific period of time. Reconstruction should be undertaken only when the property to be reconstructed is essential for understanding and interpreting the value of a historical district and sufficient historical documentation exists to insure an exact reproduction of the original.

Rehabilitation is the process of returning a property to a state of utility, through repair or alteration, which makes possible an efficient contemporary use. In rehabilitation, those portions of the property which are important in illustrating historic and cultural values are preserved or restored.

- - - - -

National Parks - Outstanding, relatively spacious land and water areas under federal ownership. They usually contain a diversity of scenic, scientific and other values and support a broad range of visitor-use programs.

National Monuments - Outstanding land and water areas, usually under federal ownership. They generally contain lesser acreage than National Parks and support a narrower range of visitor-use programs. Their purpose is to preserve resources of special scientific significance.

National Historic Sites - Properties of outstanding historical value to the nation as a whole. They may be under federal, state or local ownership. In the latter cases, the National Park Service acts in an advisory capacity.

National Memorials - Properties commemorating historic events and/or personages of exceptional significance to the nation. Usually they are under National Park Service jurisdiction, but ownership may be mixed.

National Historic Landmarks - Outstanding examples of the nation's historical and/or cultural patrimony. They are evaluated and recommended for designation by the Advisory Board on National Parks, Historic Sites, Buildings, and Monuments. Federal ownership is not implied. Ownership may be public or private, but owner must agree to maintain property in accord with accepted preservation precepts if he accepts designation. Landmark status offers higher priority in the distribution of grants-in-aid under the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 and is acknowledged by a bronze plaque and a certificate from the Secretary of the Interior.

National Survey of Historic Sites and Buildings - Conducted by the National Park Service under authority of the Historic Sites Act of 1935 for purposes of identifying historic and prehistoric places of national significance. The Survey forms the basis of National Historic Landmark designations.

HABS - Historic American Buildings Survey - Initiated by the National Park Service in 1933 for purposes of assembling a national collection of detailed records of historically and architecturally significant buildings. Conducted in cooperation with the American Institute of Architects and the Library of Congress.

HAER - Historic American Engineering Record - Established by the National Park Service in 1969 for purposes of documenting historic engineering, industrial and technological works. Conducted in cooperation with the American Society of Civil Engineers and the Library of Congress.

Cultural Resources In Oregon

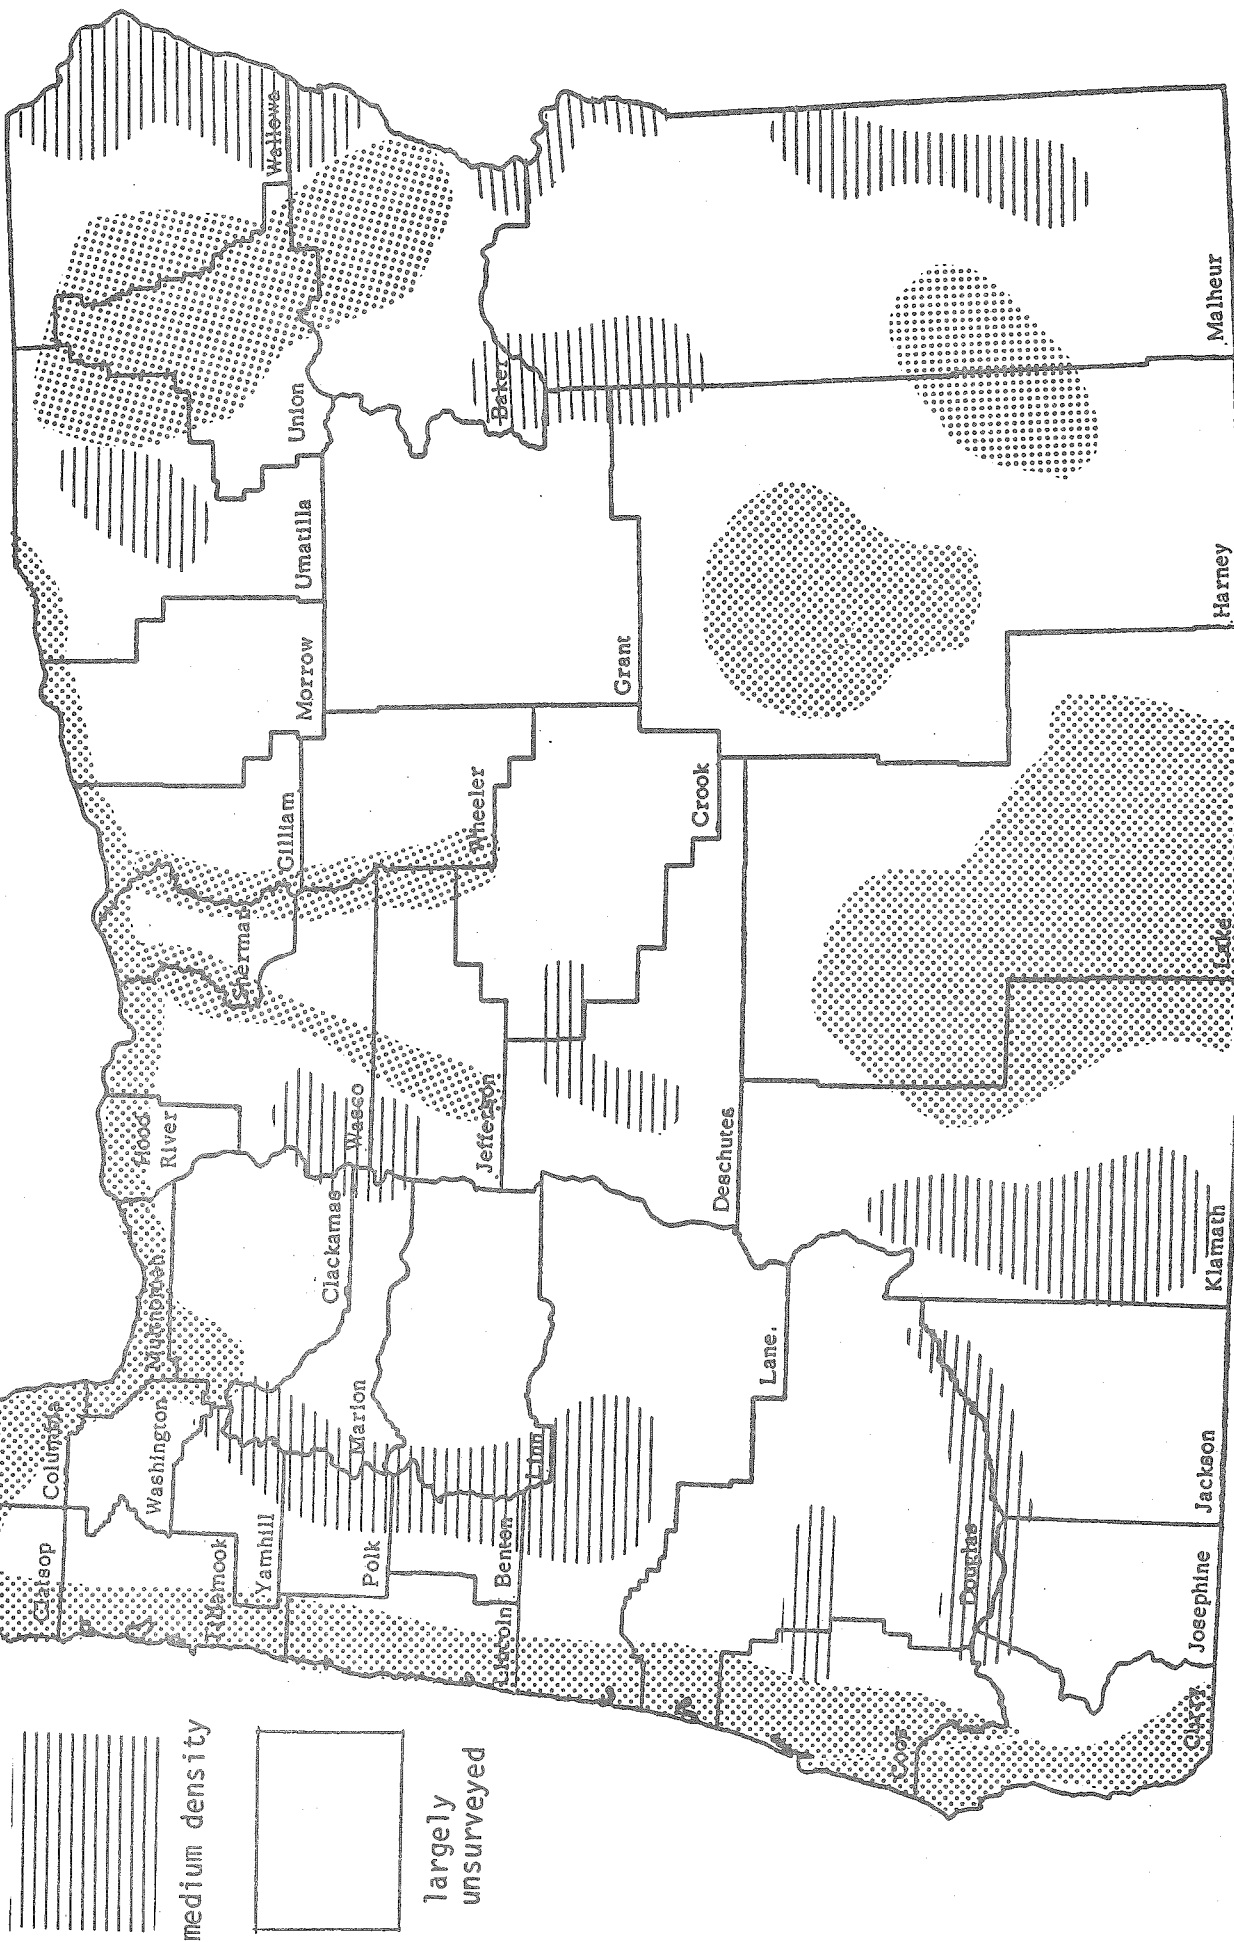

To date, some 70% of the State of Oregon has been surveyed by historians to identify historic sites and buildings important to Oregon's past. At the same time, only some three percent of the state has been surveyed by archeologists. The results of these cultural resource surveys indicate that Oregon contains some 2,500 historic sites worthy of placement on the Statewide Inventory and perhaps some 120,000 archeological sites, for a density of about 1.3 cultural sites per square mile.

The large difference between numbers of historic and archeologic sites is merely a reflection of the fact that Indians have lived here for some 20,000 years while Euro-Americans have been in Oregon only about 173 years. The large gap between seventy percent and three percent in completeness of surveys is due to several factors: 1) archeological sites are "buried" to a greater degree and therefore more difficult to locate 2) historians have written records to utilize, often telling them where to look 3) the Indian societies were pre-literate and most of their oral traditions telling of old village site locations were never recorded by early settlers.

Since the year of 1906 the federal government has passed several laws and executive orders in order to try and preserve the cultural remains of both Indian and early Euro-American history. The government realized that the native cultures had been largely destroyed and their cultural remains were likewise disappearing under the shovel of "pot-hunters", the construction of towns, and the activities of road builders, loggers, miners and others.

Each archeologic site is like a book of which only one copy exists. Properly excavated and analyzed, a site can tell who lived there, when they lived there, how large the group was, what the people ate, the climate at the time, the type of social organization the group practiced, average life spans, religious practices and even some of the diseases they suffered from. If this site is destroyed, either through the purposeful digging of relic hunters or through the accidental activities of house, road, sewer line, water line, or other developers, then the book, which is public property has been burned.

(Address) 960 Franklin, Astoria, Ore.

Original Use Residence

Date of Construction c. 1888

Description of property and statement of historical significance:

The Capt. Eric Johnson house is a one and one-half story, wood frame building with a rectangular shape. This building, which faces south, has a gable roof. The brick chimney has a stucco exterior. The exterior of the house is wide, grooved shiplap except clapboards on the second story of the front elevation. The front door has sidelights and a transom. A porch with turned columns is located on the south and west elevations. The structure has a basement. The windows are one-over-one double hung sash and are set in simple surrounds with entablatures. An addition of one story has been added on the north elevation. The condition of the building is good.

Capt. Eric Johnson was a bar pilot on the Columbia River. Johnson was born August 12, 1847, near Gottenburg, Sweden, a son of John Johnson. Capt. Johnson went to sea while a young man and at age 18 enlisted in 1863 in the United States Navy. He located at Astoria on September 29, 1868. In 1872 he was licensed as a pilot on the Columbia River bar. Johnson married Mary Parker, a daughter of H.B. Parker of Astoria. Mrs. Johnson died in 1889.

This house was later owned by L.A. Larson, a painting contractor, vocalist, and organist. Larson formed the Laerkin Male Chorus, a Scandinavian Singing society. Branches of this organization are yet active in Portland and Seattle.

Original Use Residence
Date of Construction 1895

Description of property and statement of historical significance:

The Louis Kirchoff house is a two and one-half story, wood frame building at the northwest corner of Twelfth and Franklin streets. The building has clapboard siding, a hip roof with a major gable on the east (front) elevation, and one-over-one double hung sash windows in simple surrounds. Two pairs of large brackets are attached at the base of the gable on the front elevation. A large, brick fireplace chimney on the south elevation was probably added some time after the house was erected. A projecting three window bay is located on the first floor in the south elevation. There is a verandah on the east (front) elevation which has four turned columns. The house is in poor condition.

Writing about his house in 1975, Vera Whitney Gault said: "Home of the Louis Kirchoff family, grandparents of Dr. Dorothy Johanson, professor emeritus of Reed College, Portland, and widely-known author and historian. Also the home of the aunt of Patricia Beatty, author of children's books, including Hail Columbia, locale of which is early Astoria. The building later became YWCA headquarters, then Knights of Columbus Hall. Now owned by the adjoining Peace Lutheran Church, it is used for church school classes and community services."

(Common) Astoria Airport

(Historic) Astoria Naval Air Station

Address Astoria, Ore.

Present Owner Port of Astoria, Oregon

(Address) Astoria, Oregon

Original Use Air Station

Date of Construction 1939-ff.

Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

In 1939 Congress approved a measure appropriating an initial $1.5 million for construction of a seaplane base at Tongue Point near Astoria, Oregon. During World War II the government developed the Tongue Point site and a joint airport facility at the south side of Young's Bay. Thirteen million dollars were expended at Tongue Point and seven million were spent for the Astoria Airport site. The Tongue Point station was used to train PBM (Martin Mariner) repair crews. During World War II three squadrons of PBY's (Catalina Patrol Bombers) were stationed at these Astoria stations to hunt for Japanese submarines.

The largest physical structures remaining from the World War II era at the Astoria airport are two hangers. These large, domed buildings have massive doors which open on their east and west elevations. They are covered with composition shingles. Nearby stand a dozen chimneys, the remains of the heating systems of two story, wood frame barracks. Two barracks buildings are yet standing but in very poor repair.

Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

The Astoria Post Office Landmark is a city lot on which stand a marble shaft and a bronze plaque mounted nearly flush with the ground in a sandstone rock.

The marble shaft reads: "Site of United States Post Office 1847."

The bronze plaque reads:

"Site of the First United States post office west of the Rocky Mountains. John M. Shively appointed first postmaster by President Polk 1847. Presented by Astoria Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. August 24, 1955."

The area is gravel-covered and is slightly overgrown by pines. A picket fence runs along the west front of the site along 15th Street.

Description of property and statement of historical significance:

This landmark commemorates Astoria's Sesquicentennial. It is a bronze plaque mounted on a boulder near the highway. There is no turn-out and no place to park near the monument. It reads:

"On April 12, 1961, Lord Astor of Hever, England, direct descendant of John Jacob Astor from whom this city of Astoria derived its name 150 years ago, dedicated this monument to transportation. From here members of the Astor expedition blazed eastward to St. Louis, the route that became the Oregon Trail. This point marks a center of transportation routes west across the vast Pacific, north and south along the Pacific Ocean, and East by the Columbia River to the heart of the United States.

Physical description of property

if historical significance:

The Astoria Wharf & Warehouse Company Warehouse is one of the few commercial structures on the old Astoria waterfront which survived the city's great fire in 1922. The building, which stands with its rear elevation surrounded by the Columbia River, is a two story, brick structure set on a foundation of dressed stones (which constitutes a bulkhead). The structure which faces south has heavy iron shutters over its windows. Its brick exterior is covered with stucco, but much of the stucco is falling away. A metal facade is fastened above the second story on the roof level. The double entry door on the first floor has a large, granite lugsill.

This building does not appear in the 1892 Sanborn Insurance Map of Astoria but it is present (as a paste in addition) in the 1896 edition of the Sanborn maps. These maps are preserved in the Astor Library in Astoria, Oregon.

The building is in fair condition.

Description of property and statement of historical significance:

The John Quincy Adams Bowlby house was built in 1870. It is a one and one-half story building standing on the southeast corner of Twelfth and Franklin Streets. The building has an "L" shape, a gable roof, and clapboard siding. Vertical milled boards are placed on the gable ends. The windows are one-over-one double hung sash and are placed in decorated surrounds. The double entry doors have a transom above. The condition of this house is excellent, however, a concrete and concrete block accountant's office is located at the basement level on the northwest corner of the lot. The building has two brick chimneys with flared tops.

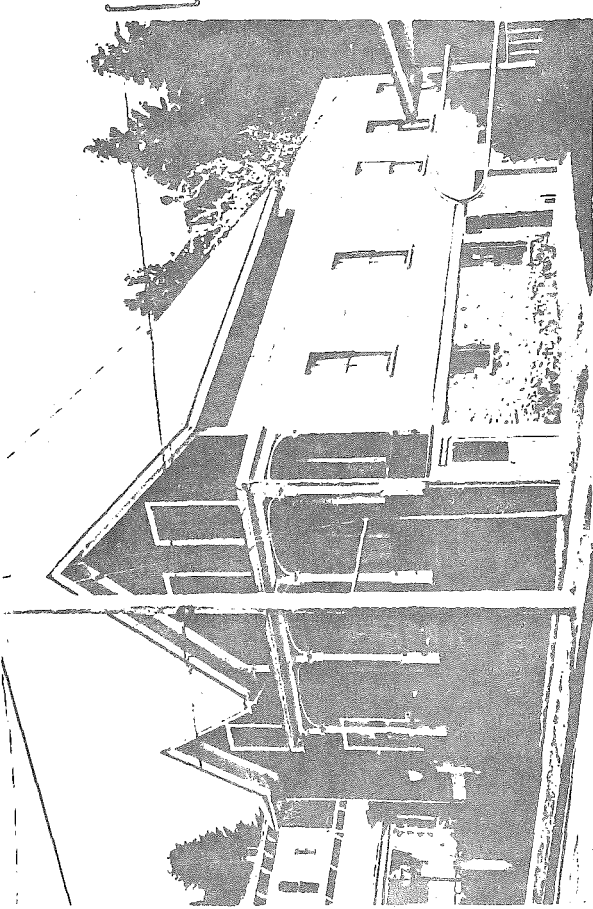

Judge J. A. Bowlby was born in New York City in 1843. He was the son of Wilson and Lydia (Jones) Bowlby. His parents moved in 1844 to Cincinnati where his father studied medicine. In 1852 the family emigrated overland to Oregon. His father was a farmer near Hillsboro until 1860 when he located in Forest Grove and continued his practice of medicine. Judge Bowlby attended Pacific University and studied law with Judge W.W. Upton in Portland. In 1868 Bowlby located in Astoria as Deputy Collector of Customs. He was admitted to the bar in 1874 and was elected county judge in 1874. Bowlby married in 1875 to Georgie Brown, a daughter of Samuel Brown. Judge Bowlby was an organizer of the Astoria Savings Bank.

Statement of historical significance:

The Capt. Hiram Brown house is the oldest standing in Astoria, Oregon. Constructed in 1859 this one and one-half story, wood frame building has an irregular shape. The exterior is clapboard. The house is set on a stone foundation. A one story, flat roof addition is attached on the south (rear) elevation. A verandah extends along the north (front) elevation. The house has a shingled, gable roof. The windows are two-over-two, double hung sash. Wide frieze boards are located at the eaves and are very visible on the gable ends. The house is in excellent condition. Etched glass sidelights and transom surround the main entry door.

Writing in 1894, Harvey Hines remarked: "The Captain built his residence in Upper Astoria in 1859, which was subsequently removed on scows and hauled to its present location, No. 581 Wall street, then remodeled and improved." Captain Hiram Brown was born December 14, 1823, in Cayuga County, New York. He was the son of Sherman and Polly (Ogden) Brown. In 1849 Brown journeyed overland to California and mined at Grass Valley. In September, 1850, he settled in Astoria. He first worked at Tongue Point building a sawmill and was head sawyer. He then became a river man and in 1854 was a pilot between Portland and Astoria. From 1857 to 1889 Brown worked for the Union Pacific Company on its vessels as a pilot. Brown also invested in a general merchandise store, a tannery, and with Leinenweber operated a cannery for salmon on the Nestucca and another at Tillamook. Captain Brown married Annie Durfee in Illinois; she died in 1849. He next married Esther Stephens (Stevens), a daughter (over)

The I.W. Case house is a two story, wood frame building constructed in an "L" shape. It is a structure with Classical Revival Style; however, the features on the exterior have been altered through several changes over the years. The exterior is clapboard. The windows are one-over-one double hung sash set in simple surrounds; these windows are probably replacements. A bay projects on the first floor in the west elevation. The main entry door has sidelights and a transom. The sidelights have, however, been covered over. A brick chimney for a fireplace was added probably about 1910. The structure has a verandah on the south (front) elevation and a basement.

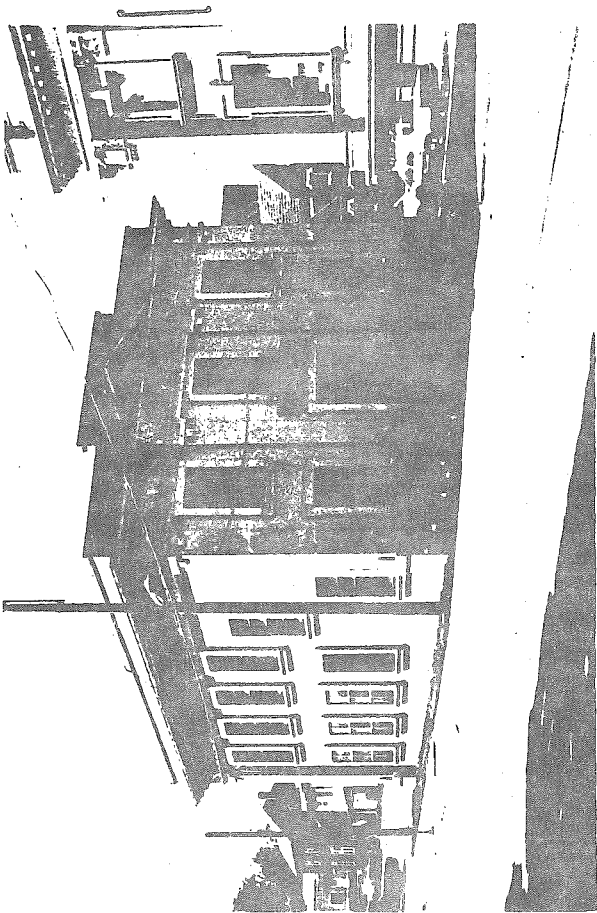

This house was built for George Warren and his wife, the former Frances Stevens. While it was under construction, Warren was killed in a logging accident. After the widow's marriage to I. W. Case the house was completed and was their residence for many years. Case was the president of the I. W. Case Bank. Later this house was the residence of Dr. R. J. Date of Construction 1887

Description of property and statement of historical significance:

The John P. Dickinson house is a two and one-half story, wood frame building in very poor condition. It faces south on Franklin Street. The building has a clapboard exterior. A porch, not the original, rises two stories on the front elevation. There is a transom over the door on the second floor. Dormers have been added in the roof on the front elevation. The windows are one-over-one double hung sash (narrow panes in pairs in the window bays) on the second story. The gable roof is shingled and in fair condition.

John P. Dickinson was born in Caroline County, Virginia, in 1823, the son of Samuel C. and Evelina (Pendleton) Dickinson. He attended and graduated from William and Mary College. He then located in Bowling Green, Kentucky, and practiced law. He was appointed in 1850 as Clerk of the Pension Office in Washington, D.C. He served in the Confederate Army and in 1871 moved to Portland, Oregon. Dickinson located in Astoria in 1880 as bookkeeper for the Astoria Packing Company. In 1886 he became Deputy County Clerk in Clatsop County.

Dickinson married Sally T. Woolfolk in Kentucky. Their daughters included Fanny, the wife of Brenham Van Dusen and Louise, wife of Dr. Alfred Kinney.

The original hip roof on this house was removed about 1941-42 and a gable roof was then installed. The structure has several other alterations. It is unoccupied in 1976.

Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

This house originally stood at 636 Fourteenth Street. It was moved to this site in 1895 at the time of the building of the Franklin Patton house. The structure was owned as a rental by Father Leopold Dieleman, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church from 1879 to 1900. Later the structure was the home of Dr. Thomas L. Ball and his wife, Margaret. It is presently (1976) being restored and painted.

The house is a one story, wood frame building with a gable roof which faces west on 15th Street. It has one-over-one, double hung sash windows set in elaborate window surrounds. The decorations on the surrounds include attachments of wooden "buttons" on the moldings. The exterior is horizontal shiplap siding with vertical, milled boards on the gables. The foundation is enclosed with a vertical shiplap skirting.

Dr. Thomas L. Ball was born in Fremont, Ohio, on March 21, 1863, a son of Thaddeus Ball. At age 26 he emigrated to Oregon and was a lumberman. He later went to Louisville, Kentucky, to study dentistry and in 1896 he passed the Oregon exams. He located in Astoria in 1896. Dr. Ball married in 1888 to Margaret A. Leedy.

Statement of historical significance:

Conrad Boelling has this building erected in 1885 as a rental property. The previous year he built a house across the street at 788 Franklin for use also as a rental. The building is a two story, wood frame structure with a hipped roof and Italianate Style. The exterior is horizontal shiplap. The brick chimney is covered with stucco. The windows are two-over-two, double hung sash and have entablatures. The eaves are boxed. A two story projecting window bay is located on the south elevation. A simple roof is suspended over the front entrance and is supported by ornate brackets. The house faces west and is in good condition.

Conrad Boelling emigrated to Oregon from Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1846. In 1848 he opened a hotel in Astoria and prospered from investments in the city. His daughter, Mary Christiana Lydia Boelling married Capt. George Flavel. Conrad Boelling was born in Hesse-Cassel, Germany. His wife, Philipina Veith, was born in Rheinpalz, Bavaria.

This house was for several years the residence of Samuel Elmore. Elmore was born May 23, 1847, in Rondout, New York. He was a son of R. P. Elmore. Samuel Elmore attended schools in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. He also was a student in Lawrence University and Genesee College. He served in the Union Army during the Civil War. In 1866 Elmore sailed for San Francisco by way of Panama and worked as a bookkeeper. He returned to Wisconsin but in 1872 again located in California. He became a partner with Robert D. Detailed description of property and statement of historical significance:

The first rectory of Grace Episcopal Church was erected in 1883. The structure is a two story, wood frame building in Italianate Style. It has a low, hipped roof and is in an "L" shape. At the boxed eaves are decorative brackets set in pairs against a frieze board. The exterior is horizontal shiplap siding. A projecting window bay is located on the east (front) elevation. The windows are one-over-one, double hung sash windows in simple surrounds. There is a transom over the main entry door. An open porch is located on the east elevation on the back part of the main facade or elevation. The structure is in good condition.

Grace Episcopal Church was organized in Astoria in 1864 by Rev. T. Hyland. The rectory, erected in 1883, was replaced by another built in 1920 (see file sheet). The first minister to occupy the building was Rev. William Seymour Short.

Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

The rectory of the Grace Episcopal Church is a one and one-half story wood frame building with a vague Jacobean Style. The building has a gable roof with a cross gable on the north (front) elevation that has exposed boards and stucco on the gable end. The exterior of the building is shingle. The windows are mostly units of eight panes or six-over-one units. The building, in excellent condition, is set on a concrete foundation. A cross of wood is erected as an ornament on the front gable. There is one brick chimney.

The first Episcopal Church Rectory was built in 1883 and stands at 637 Sixteenth Street. The fellowship was founded in Astoria in 1864 by Rev. T. Hyland.

1 statement of historical significance:

In 1884 R. M. Brayne began construction of a pulp mill at the base of Youngs Falls on the Youngs River in Clatsop County. Following the burning of the first ground wood pulp mill on the Pacific Coast, a mill at Camas, Washington, (burning in 1886), Brayne brought the mill stones to his site on the Youngs River. In 1887 he incorporated the Falls Pulp Company and operated his pulp mill, the first in Oregon, until 1904. The mill produced five tons of pulp a day which was shipped to Stockton, California. Brayne built a dam and a penstock above the falls. The system provided some 200 horsepower. Pulp from this mill won the first prize in 1893 at the Chicago World's Fair for quality ground pulp.

The pulp mill was a wood frame building with a gable roof with lean-to sheds attached on three elevations. It stood on the riverbank and on piling into the river.

Crown Zellerbach presented one of the millstones to the Clatsop County Historical Museum in Astoria.

Vertical shiplap skirting encloses the foundation. The building has large frieze boards. An open porch is attached on the north east corner of the building. The condition of this structure is excellent.

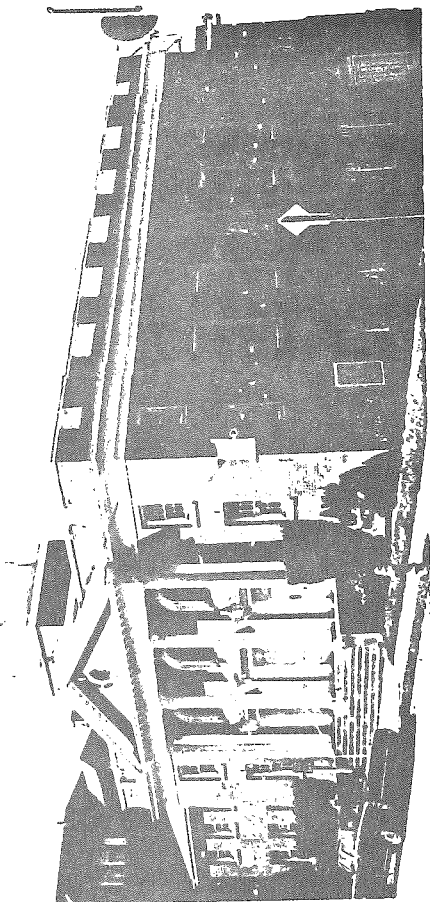

An historical plaque placed on the front of this house states that it was built in 1892. The Gault Walking Tour gives the date of construction as 1882. The building was originally started as a house for the Sisters of the Holy Names. It was completed as a residence for the Foster Ferry family. Ferry, a stone mason, constructed much of the early stone work in Astoria. This building was later the residence of Frank Potter, a logger.

Description of property and statement of historical significance:

The First United Methodist Church of Astoria, Oregon, is a two story, brick building in the Georgian Style. The building has four columns and four pilasters supporting the porch on the front (south) elevation. The windows are six-over-six, double hung sash and are set in simple surrounds. The three entry bays on the south (front) elevation have Romanesque windows above (arched and constituted by small panes). The educational wing is attached on the west elevation. A square brick base rises above the main entrance for a bellfry which has never been constructed. A short spire and cross stand on the bellfry base and appear out of proportion to the building. The condition of this structure is excellent. It is set on a concrete foundation and has a concrete basement.

The Methodist Church dates in Clatsop County from the work of the Jason Lee mission efforts in 1840. Rev. John H. Frost came to the county in 1840 for the purpose of converting the Clatsop Indians. The present fellowship dates its history from the organization of a church in Astoria in 1853; this congregation was reorganized in 1878.

Statement of historical significance:

In 1895 Augustus and Ferdinand Fisher erected this large, two story, wood frame house in Italianate Style on the hillside overlooking Astoria, Oregon. The building has a low, hipped roof. Projecting two story bays are located on either side of the main entrance. The main doorway has sidelights and a transom. The hipped roof is decorated the eaves with brackets. An open porch is located at the main entrance. It has lattice work skirting its foundation. The exterior of the building is shiplap. A band of vertical milled boards encircles the house at the eaves. A projecting window bay is located on the first floor on the south elevation. The window surrounds are elaborate. The windows are one-over-one double hung sash. Another projecting window bay is located on the north elevation of the first floor. The house has two brick chimneys in perilous condition. The building is in poor condition and is divided into about six apartments.

Augustus and Ferdinand Fisher were sons of Carl Albert Fisher and Crystal (Wittick) Fisher. Their parents emigrated from Germany to the United States in 1854 and settled in Connecticut. In 1870 the family moved to Clatsop County, Oregon. (Hines, 1894, reports that the family emigrated in 1864 to Oregon and came to the U.S. in 1855). Capt. Augustus C. Fisher built his fortune out of a steamship business which hauled freight and passengers along the lower Columbia River. In 1877 he built a business building in Astoria. Eventually he and his brother, Ferdinand, owned the Fisher Brothers Hardware (which was also a ships chandlery firm).

General description of property and statement of historical significance:

This house was constructed in 1900 by Ferdinand Fisher. It is a two and one-half story, wood frame building with a bellcast hip roof. Dormers break the roof on the east, west, and south elevations. The building has clapboard siding and one-over-one double hung sash windows. The brick chimney is covered with stucco. A projecting window bay is located on the second story on the south (front) elevation above the porch (which has been recently glassed-in). The windows on the second floor next to the bay are arranged to create a Palladian effect. The building has a basement and is in good condition. It is now divided into apartments.

Ferdinand Fisher was a son of Carl Albert Fisher and Crystal (Wittick) Fisher. He was born in Germany and was one of nine children. In 1854 his parents moved to Connecticut and in 1870 they located in Clatsop County. (Hines states that they moved to the U.S. in 1855 and to Clatsop County in 1864). With his brother August C. Fisher he established in the 1890's a hardware store and chandlery which continues under the same business name, Fishers, in 1976. The family sold the firm in 1903.

Description of property and statement of historical significance:

In 1903 George Flavel, Jr., built a second house in Astoria, Oregon, for himself and his wife, the former Wenona Callender. This structure is a large, two story, wood frame building in Colonial Style with a clapboard exterior. The house has an open porch with a balcony on the east (front) elevation. The building is set on a dressed stone foundation. It has two brick chimneys. A side entrance on the south elevation has a portico with a balcony above. Several of the windows have leaded glass sections. The hipped roof is broken with dormers on all elevations. The windows in the house are primarily one-over-one. The eaves are boxed and are decorated by a wide frieze board that encircles the house. The structure is in sound condition but is badly neglected.

George Flavel, Jr., was the eldest of three children born to Capt. George Flavel and Mary Christina Lydia (Boelling) Flavel. George Flavel, Jr., worked for his father in his shipping, real estate, and banking interests. He died February 18, 1923. This house then became the property of Harry M. Between 695 and 659 15th Street stand five rental houses constructed about 1900 by Alexandre Gilbert. An additional structure, part of this complex, stands on Grand Avenue. These buildings are of two types and are built in alternation.

Type #1: These three houses are two story, wood frame buildings with one-over-one windows. Each house was a hipped roof broken by a dormer on the east (front) elevation. The exterior is narrow, clapboard siding. A verandah, supported by three columns, extends on the front elevation.

Type #2: These three houses are one and one-half story bungalows of good size. Each has a gable roof broken on the front elevation by a dormer above the recessed front porch. The windows are mostly one-over-one. The exterior of this house type is narrow clapboards for the base and shingles on the upper half of the house and on the gable ends.

Each of these houses has lattice under the porch and one brick chimney.

----- Description of property and statement of historical significance: -----

This two story wood frame building stands at the corner of 16th and Grand Streets in Astoria, Oregon. It is one of the earliest examples of Colonial Style architecture in Astoria. The building has a bellcast hip roof with exposed beams beneath the boxed eaves. The windows are one-over-one set in simple surrounds. They are double hung, sash windows. The open porch on the south (front) elevation has been glassed-in. A small, projecting window bay is located on the stair landing on the east elevation. The exterior is clapboards. The house is set over a basement; the front porch is supported by dressed stones. Leaded, colored window panes are located in the upper part of the windows on the front elevation, first floor. A wide band of scrolled decorations encircles the house below the eaves. The condition of the house is excellent.

Philip A. Stokes, for whom this house was built, owned a clothing store in Astoria. His brother, Frank Stokes, was a partner in the Foard and Stokes mercantile business. The house was the long-time home of Sam S. Gordon, a president and manager of the First National Bank in Astoria.

historical significance:

The Home Apartments building was originally erected in 1909 as the home and offices of Dr. Alfred C. Kinney. This two and one-half story building is in the Colonial Style. It has a stone foundation for a basement and a very narrow clapboard exterior. The windows are one-over-one, double hung sash and are located with three in a bay on either side of the main entrance on the first and second floors. The windows have very large entablatures on the first floor. A grand, two story entrance porch, supported by two story columns and pilasters on the south (front) elevation dominates the building. Dormers with pediments are located on the roof level. The building has two brick chimneys.

Begun in 1909, this building remained unfinished for many years. Finally in 1917 John Gratle and Alex Karsun completed the building and opened it as the Home Apartments. Dr. Alfred Kinney was born January 30, 1850 in the Chehalem Valley in Yamhill County, Oregon. He was a son of Robert C. Kinney who emigrated overland to Oregon in 1847. In 1868, following his education at McMinnville College, Kinney went to New York where he entered Bellevue Hospital Medical College. He graduated in 1872 and began medical practice in Portland. Eventually, in 1885, Kinney located in Astoria. Kinney was the first president of the Oregon Medical Association. Kinney was a heavy investor in the railroads built into Clatsop County and was one of the founders of New Astoria, today Hammond, Oregon.

statement of historical significance:

The DeWitt Clinton Ireland house is a small, one story, wood frame building which faces north over the Columbia River and Astoria. The exterior, which was probably once horizontal shiplap siding, is covered with shakes (or oversize shingles). The windows are two-over-two, double hung sash and are set in simple surrounds. The roof is gable. A simple porch or verandah extends along the north (front) elevation. One six-over-six double hung sash window remains in the west elevation.

DeWitt Clinton Ireland was born in 1825 in Rutland, Vermont. He was a son of William and Miranda (Ellsworth) Ireland. Ireland grew up in Indiana and Minnesota. In 1861 Ireland came to Oregon where he settled in Portland to work on the Oregonian. In 1866 he founded the Oregon City Enterprise and in 1873 founded the Tri-Weekly Astorian (in 1876, the Daily Astorian). Ireland was elected mayor of Astoria in 1876 and 1880 on an anti-vice platform. Ireland died in January, 1913, in Moro, Oregon, where he was editor of the Sherman County Observer.

This house was later occupied by the McCroskey family.

Statement of historical significance:

The Will Joplin house is a two story, wood frame building with a rectangular shape. The building has a gable roof and a projecting window bay of four one-over-one double hung sash windows on the south (front) elevation. Imbricated shingles decorate the gable end of the house. A recessed porch is located on the southeast corner of the front elevation at the front door. There is a transom over the main entry door. The exterior is shiplap siding on the south elevation and clapboard siding on the west elevation. The house is in excellent condition.

This house was built in 1892 by Will Joplin. Joplin's family had founded Joplin, Missouri. According to Vera Gault the house became in 1903 the home of Captain Peter Jordan. A plaque on the front of the building states that the date was 1908. Jordan, Melville Callender and Captain Max Skibbe founded the Callender Navigation Company. Their steamer the Gleaner capsized off Tongue Point in 1888.

There is a plaque on the front elevation of the house.

Description of property and statement of historical significance:

Since 1938 this building has housed Josephson's Smoked Salmon Market. Prior to that the building housed for thirty years the Columbia River Fishermen's Protective Union. Earlier yet the building was a commercial structure constructed by Marshall Kinney. The building is a one story, wood frame building with a gable roof and a false front. It faces south on Marine Drive. The exterior is horizontal shiplap siding. The windows are one-over-one in simple surrounds. The false front has decorative brackets at its top. There is one brick chimney. More recent lean-tos are attached on the east and north elevations.

Marshall Kinney was brought to Oregon in 1847 when an infant. His father was Robert C. Kinney, a first mill operator in Yamhill and Marion counties between 1859 and 1882. Marshall Kinney attended the McMinnville Academy and in 1868 began management of his father's branch office in San Francisco. In 1876 he became a salmon packer in Astoria and built up the largest cannery in the world in the city. His annual pack reached some 75,000 cases per year. Kinney also developed canneries at Chilcoot and Cape Fox in Alaska and at Fairhaven in Washington. He was also a partner for more than twenty years in the Clatsop Mill Company, a lumbering firm headed by his brother. In 1899 Kinney moved his offices to Portland.

This building has a landmark plaque mounted on its south (front) elevation. It is in excellent condition.

Physical description, history and statement of historical significance:

In 1884 Conrad Boelling constructed this house up the hill and on the southwest corner of the block where he had erected his own residence in 1863. The building is a one story, wood frame structure with a shingled gable roof. The two brick chimneys are covered with stucco; they have flared tops. The exterior of the house is horizontal shiplap siding. The windows are one-over-one, double hung sash. They are set in surrounds with very large entablatures. A semi-elliptical transom window is located over the entry door. An open porch is located at the main entrance on the south (front) elevation. The eaves are boxed and decorated with brackets. The gable ends of the house are cross-banded with boards and have an exterior of vertical, milled siding. The condition of the house is excellent. It is marked with a plaque on the east elevation.

Conrad Boelling emigrated to Oregon from Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1846. In 1848 he opened a hotel in Astoria and prospered greatly from investments in the city. His daughter Mary Christiana Lydia Boelling married Capt. George Flavel. Conrad Boelling was born in Hesse-Cassel, Germany. His wife, Philipina Veith, was born in Rheinphalz, Bavaria.

Description of property and statement of historical significance:

The James L. Lovell house is a one and one-half story brick building with a concrete foundation and basement. The structure displays a Georgian or Colonial Style feeling. The building has a hip roof with a center gable that is a dormer for lighting of the attic. The roof is shingled. The windows are eight panes of glass set in sets of four or two in the window bays. The brick chimney is covered with stucco. The center porch on the south (front) elevation is supported by four square posts. The condition of the house is good.

James L. Lovell was born in Boston, Lincolnshire, England, on December 25, 1852. He was the son of Charles Penton Lovell, a pattern-maker and cabinet-worker who emigrated to Chicago in 1868. The Lovell family emigrated in 1870. James L. Lovell was apprenticed as a pattern-maker in England at age twelve. At age 14 he began work as an apprentice moulder in the foundry. In 1870 he found work in Chicago in the plant of the Boomer Bridge Company. In 1874 Lovell went to Virginia City, Nevada, and later worked in California and Nevada. For over 13 years he was manager of the Manhattan Silver Mining Company foundry in Austin, Nevada. In 1889 Lovell came to Astoria where he founded the Scow Bay Foundry Company with D.H. and John Welch. In 1897 he sold out and moved to Placerville, California, to mine for gold, but later he returned to Astoria and by 1904 was sole owner of the foundry. Lovell married Rose Anita Watson and had four children. His son, Sherman W. Lovell, founded the Lovell Auto Company in Astoria in 1910. That firm is owned in 1976 by a grandson, Robert Lovell.

This large, two story, wood frame house is in the Queen Anne Style. It has a hipped roof with dormers and gables. The windows are mostly one-over-one, double hung sash. The structure has brackets under the eaves. The north (front) elevation has a square structure on its northeast corner which, with a small hipped roof, gives the appearance of being a tower. There is a wrought iron railing on the balcony of the second floor of this "tower." The main entry on the north (front) elevation has double doors and a transom. An open porch is located on the northwest corner of the house at the main entrance. The structure has a basement and is in good condition. The exterior is primarily flushboard with grooved shiplap used for decoration or additional texture. The house has a walnut staircase and three marble fireplaces.

Captain John Merriman purchased this site from Col. James Taylor and constructed this home about 1885. Later John Devlin, bookkeeper for the Hume Brothers Cannery, purchased the house. Devlin developed his own cannery on the Astoria waterfront. Vera Whitney Gault wrote in 1975: "Old records say that Jevlin's cannery workers carried revolvers going to and from work to protect themselves from being shanghaied by runners from sailing ships, who would grab men from the woods, farms, and streets to deliver them to their captains for a fee." This house was subsequently a mortuary and an apartment house. It is in 1976 a restored residence.

Date of Construction 1905

Description of property and statement of historical significance:

This house is a one and one-half story, wood frame building with narrow clapboard siding and a gambrel roof. The roof has gambrel-roof dormers on the east and west elevations. The ends of the house under the roof are shingled. The verandah on the north (front) elevation has been glassed-in. A small, projecting window bay is located on the stair landing between the first and second stories. The windows are one-over-one, double hung sash, except for eight-over-one windows in the glass-enclosed porch. There is one brick chimney. The house is in good condition.

This structure was the home of E. P. Noonan, an Astoria insurance dealer. About 1915 it was purchased by Albin W. Norblad. Norblad was born March 19, 1881, in Malmö, Sweden, a son of Peter and Bessie (Anderson) Norblad. He was brought by his parents when a child to Grand Rapids, Michigan. At age twelve Norblad became an employee of a furniture company. He was later a newspaper reporter and in June, 1905, graduated from the Chicago Law School. In 1909 he moved to Astoria where he became the city attorney. Norblad was later a state senator and governor of Oregon in 1929. He introduced legislation creating the Oregon Coast highway. His son Walter Norblad served as Congressman from Oregon's First District from 1946 to 1965.

This house is marked with an historical plaque on its north (front) elevation.

Statement of historical significance:

The Thomas Goodwin house stands on the west side of Highway 101 near Cullaby Lake. This structure is a one and one-half story, wood frame building with a gable roof. The exterior is clapboard siding. The original windows, which remain on the east (front) elevation, are six-over-six, double hung sash. One-over-one windows have been installed in the other elevations. A verandah is located on the front elevation. The house has wide frieze boards and two brick chimneys. The structure is in excellent condition.

This house was built between 1860 and 1865 by Thomas Goodwin. Goodwin's wife was first married to a man named Allen. This property was purchased in 1912 by Frank Wilkinson. Wilkinson's daughter, Marjorie Reith, is the present owner. Mrs. Reith had several rooms on the northwest elevation removed because of the difficulty in heating so large a house. The brick footings for the foundation of the now destroyed wing remain in the garden.

This property is the site of a large sheep and cattle ranch on the Clatsop Plains. Approximately a dozen barns and other farm buildings stand west of this house.

Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

Westport, founded in 1850 by Captain John West, was long a site for lumbering and shipping on the lower Columbia River. In 1910 the Westport Lumber Company erected a major mill at the site and by the 1920's over 400 men were employed in this manufacturing plant. The mill, which eventually encompassed a thirteen acre area, was equipped for handling over-sized logs. In 1931 the mill prepared new spars for "Old Ironsides," during the restoration of the Constitution. Following World War II the mill was purchased by Shepard and Morse of Boston and was operated until February 22, 1956. At that time the town had the 70-room Shepard & Morse Hotel, a grocery, butcher shop, and 34 single family dwellings.

The site is a location on the Columbia River and is marked by pilings which remain from the old mill location. Much of the site is overgrown with brush.

General description of property and statement of historical significance:

The Christian Schmidt house was built in 1910. This two and one-half story, wood frame dwelling has a shingled, bellcast hip roof. The windows are one-over-one, double hung sash. The porch on the south (front) elevation appears to be a later addition and is glassed-in. The exterior of the house is clapboard siding. The structure is set on a concrete foundation and has a basement. A projecting three window bay is located on the west elevation of the first floor. There are sections of leaded glass windows in the upper parts of some of the window bays. The front door has a large oval window. The structure has one brick chimney. The condition is excellent.

Christian Schmidt was one of five sons born to Samuel and Eliza (Hose) Schmidt. Samuel Schmidt was born in Elsheim, Germany, in 1823. He emigrated to the United States in 1850 and became a fish merchant in New York. Schmidt died in 1869. His son, Samuel Schmidt, born March 17, 1857, and the other four sons joined their mother in running the fish business. They expanded the firm which became known as S. Schmidt & Company. By the 1880's the Schmidt's had moved into the cold storage business and began purchasing and freezing fish at distant points. The firm first came to the mouth of the Columbia in 1886 but did not establish its large freezing and packing facilities in Astoria until 1896.

Description of property and statement of historical significance:

Vera Whitney Gault identifies this structure as the Irving Stevens house. However, if the family history was correctly given in the genealogy published on the family by Joseph Gaston, Centennial History of Oregon, vol. 2, 1912, 1052, it may be that this is the Charles Stevens house. According to Gaston, Charles Stevens was the father of Irving Stevens.

The house is a two story, wood frame building in the Italianate style. It has a low, hipped roof, and many features similar to the Conrad Boelling House (see file sheet). The exterior is clapboard siding. A new front porch attached to the south (front) elevation has been glassed-in and alters the appearance of the building. The windows are two-over-two, double hung sash. The building is in good condition following stabilization work in 1974-76.

Capt. Irving Stevens, who may have occupied this house, was the owner of a shipping firm that operated between Portland and Astoria. Irving's sister, Esther, married Captain Hiram Brown (see file sheet). His sister Frances E. married G.W. Warren and I. W. Case (see file sheet).

The Nathaniel Tallant house is a large, two and one-half story, wood frame building facing south on Grand Avenue. It is situated so that the north (back) elevation has extensive views over the Columbia River. A round, projecting window bay on the northeast corner and a square, two story, projecting window bay on the northwest corner provide views of the harbor. The Albert W. Ferguson house is a large, two and one-half story residence of wood frame construction which stands high on a bank above Grand Avenue. It overlooks the city of Astoria and the Columbia River. This building has a gable roof (covered with shakes in 1975). The foundation is dressed stone; there is a basement. Originally the building had two fireplaces; the one in the parlor on the west elevation was removed in 1975 during restoration of the house. A two story window bay is located on the north (front) elevation. An open porch with a balcony is located on the north east corner at the double entry doors. The doorway is decorated by an elaborate surround. The windows are one-over-one set in ornate surrounds. The central windows in the bays on the north elevation are leaded glass. The exterior is horizontal clapboard siding. In 1975-76 the present owner changed the structure from two apartments back into a single family residence. He has made extensive efforts to stabilize the foundation, roof, gutter system, and shattered plaster in the interior (much has been replaced by plaster board).

Albert W. Ferguson was born August 29, 1821, in Virginia. As an apprentice carpenter he married Margaret Wetzel in Virginia. Ferguson traveled to California in 1850 and to the lower Columbia River in 1851. In 1851 he opened a sash and door factory in Salem. He was joined by his wife in 1852. of historical significance:

The Nettie Wilson house is a much-photographed, one and one-half story wood frame building facing north on Franklin Street in Astoria, Oregon. This building has a gabled hip roof with a cross gable on the northeast corner of the north (front) elevation. A verandah extends along the front elevation and is decorated with elaborate fans of spools. There is a transom above the front door (which is new). A projecting window bay is located on the front elevation. Fenestration in the building is very irregular. There are two original round windows and other windows that are additions over the years. The house has three brick chimneys; two of these are older and have flared tops. The basement and foundation are enclosed with vertical milled siding.

Nettie Wilson was the daughter of Augusta (Fisher) Wilson and Louis Wilson. Her uncles were Augustus and Ferdinand Fisher (see file sheets) who were partners with her father in a hardware business in Astoria in the 1870's and 1880's. This house was later the residence of Judge T. S. Cornelius. The town of Cornelius was named for the judge's parents. Judge Cornelius' blind son, Barney, had a broom shop in this house.

The house has a plaque on the front elevation.
